

British Computer Society

Contributed by Administrator
Wednesday, 30 April 2008
Last Updated Thursday, 01 May 2008

I am a professional member of the British Computer Society (BCS), having been elected on the 26th of August 2004. I gained full member status having successfully completed a BCS accredited degree course. Membership of the BCS ensures that I must follow the BCS Code of Conduct and subsequently adhere to a high level of professional conduct whilst working in the IT Industry. I am committed to following a career development path which will lead to Chartered IT Professional (CITP) status.

Updated 31/04/08: In May 2006 I was appointed the Young Professionals Group Officer of the Preston & District Branch. This meant I was the first point of contact for BCS members aged 18-35 in the North West and tasked me with the responsibility of publicising branch events and liaising with both Lancaster University and the University of Central Lancashire. Useful Information A copy of the code of conduct is available here: conduct.pdf72kb The British Computer Society Website can be viewed here: www.bcs.org.uk